

Journal Submissions

1. In this class, you will be required to write about your understanding and appreciation of the lessons through a journal with predefined points to write about.
2. You are expected to write 9 journal submissions and submit them as soon as they finish reading the required module (see Table 1 for reference).
3. The deadlines for the submissions are relaxed. However, should you submit early, it will provide me the opportunity to provide feedback.
4. File Naming Format: Section <insert number>_Entry <insert number>_<insert last name>

Example: Section 10_Entry 1_Salazar

5. Make sure to save the file in PDF format.
6. Submit it through LMS (an assignment will be provided in the LMS platform) and Email through a thread that I will make
7. Keep your submission as brief and concise as you can. (2 pages max for ALL questions)
8. Avoid using highfalutin words. Instead, focus on the message you wish to convey, and the structure of what you intend to say.

Assigned Module/Topic: Ancient Ethics and Modern Morality

Instruction: Complete briefly and honestly each statement in relation to the assigned module/topic. Submit your learning journal to LMS after the discussion of the assigned module.

I used to think that there wouldn't be much differences between modern morality and ancient ethics. I thought there wouldn't be much difference on what they prioritize and their concepts.

Now I know that ancient ethics is an inward way of thinking about how to live life. It asks the question "What do I want to do that would fulfill me?". Modern morality, on the other hand, focuses more on how to interact with our surroundings. It asks the question "What should/can I do for others that is good?"

However, I am not sure if the way I understood modern morality and ancient ethics really encapsulates their concepts.

I ought to read the other modules to get a deeper understanding of ethics in general and hopefully come up with good description of modern morality and ancient ethics.

I encountered this moral dilemma: The summer heat has started to take especially during noon time and I either had to stay in my room to attend synchronous classes and endure the heat or go downstairs/outside and miss out on the synchronous sessions.

I dealt with it by going downstairs to a cooler place and resting because the temperature in my room went as high as 35 degrees.

Overall, I feel a little annoyed because of the summer heat and how hot my room gets especially at noon.
